WHAT THIS MAP SHEET SHOWS

This map sheet has been prepared and issued for consultation purposes. It shows areas the Countryside Agency has mapped as registered common land (in green) and open country (in yellow). The Agency is required to map such areas in preparation for the introduction of new public access rights.

We would welcome your comments about whether you believe this land has been mapped correctly. We explain how you can do this in our 'How to comment' leaflet, which is available wherever the maps are displayed, through the helpline and on our website. All comments must be received in writing by 2 December 2003.

The new access rights are expected to come into effect by 2005 but are NOT yet in force.

Some land shown as registered common land or open country will not be subject to new access rights because it will be 'excepted' under the terms of the legislation. This includes land ploughed or drilled within the last 12 months for planting crops or trees, buildings, land within 20 metres of a dwelling, parks and gardens and other categories shown in Schedule 1 of the CROW Act. For more information please contact the Countryside Agency.
